ABSTRACT

The Philippine National Police is one of the prime organizations of the country to maintain peace and order. Because of the increasing crimes committed by the young members of the society, the Women and Children Protection Desk (WCPD) was created and its operation is made nationwide. But if the WCPD has the problems itself, its main function is affected, thus; this study looked on the problems encountered by its personnel in performing their duties and responsibilities. A descriptive–survey type was used applying weighted mean using Likert scaling of 5. The security officers assigned from the (6) six Municipal Stations were the respondents of the study. They were asked about the problems they encountered during the performance of the 14 stipulated duties and responsibilities. Based on the level of seriousness of the problems encountered by the WCPD personnel, it reveals ‘child abuse’ (3.83) got a highest rating which includes psychological, emotional adjustment difficulties/ post-traumatic stress disorder. Then followed by ‘limited availability of female medical practitioner or physician’ (3.16), which is considered more serious; the examining physician is not of the same gender as the victim–survivor got a weighted mean of 3.16 more serious; the identity of the victim survivor is confidential with a weighted mean of 3.33, which is considered more serious; the identity of the victim survivor is confidential with a weighted mean of 3.33 which is considered more serious. Others include: problems whether the victim–survivor will file a case against the perpetrator, especially if the offender is her relative (incest) (3.00); the barangay will inform the local social worker regarding the case (3.00); the victim is undetermined whether to file for protection order (2.83); not secure warrant of arrest for the offender (2.66); no one is reporting the incident to the PNP station (2.66); the perpetrator is resisting arrest (2.16); the victim – survivor is determined not to move to a safer place (3.00). The overall level of seriousness of the problems encountered was 2.53, which means more serious. The researcher offers the following recommendations: the community must be a part of solving the problems through proper cooperation to the PNP WCPD and other government agencies and civil societies.

ABSTRACT

The study aimed to determine the perceptions on political dynasty by the various sectors in the municipality of Boac, province of Marinduque. The data were gathered through distribution of questionnaires to forty (40) respondents composed of officers of the recognized organization and offices namely: MAFC (Municipal Agriculture and Fisheries Council), OSCA (Office of Senior Citizen Affairs), PPC (Parish Pastoral Council) and Marinduque State College - Boac Campus SSC (Supreme Student Council) together with its different student organizations (18 years old and above and registered voter of the province only) from the five (5) sectors namely: farmers, fishermen, senior citizens, religious, and students sector. The results were tabulated, analyzed and interpreted. The statistical tools such as frequency and percentage were used to determine the percentage in the perceptions of the respondents in terms of meaning, scope, prohibition, advantages and disadvantages of Political Dynasty. The findings of the study revealed that that the meaning of political dynasty which is most accepted as of this date by the respondents is the meaning "Political dynasty as defined by many is a family wherein most members either by blood or marriage are involved in politics or in acquisition of government position", the scope is "local and national government", the prohibition is "No spouse, or person related within the second degree of consanguinity or affinity whether legitimate or illegitimate, to an incumbent elective official seeking re-election shall be allowed to hold or run for any elective office in the same province in the same election", the advantage is "Political Dynasty extended their financial assistance with other family when someone is admitted to the hospital, child was given a scholarship, and husband and other physically disabled persons were given an opportunity to get involved in livelihood programs where the demand for their skills is needed", the disadvantage is "lack of competition in Philippine politics persist". Since the study revealed the perception on political dynasty of the respondents as of date and some have their own perception about it, the researcher would like to recommend for the lawmakers; they may have a massive information campaign on the concept to the public for a clearer appreciation of the subject and for the electorates; they may join the massive consultation that Congress will conduct for their perceptions and opinions to be heard for inclusion in the Anti-Political Dynasty Bill.

ABSTRACT

The study conducted intended to determine the level of satisfaction of the public to the healthcare services rendered by the Municipal Health Office of Mogpog in terms of Medical Medical Facilities. The respondents of the study were the residents of Municipality of Mogpog availing medical services. There were 370 respondents chosen for the actual survey and simple random sampling was applied. The instrument used in the study was a self-made questionnaire. During the administration of questionnaires, an interview was also conducted to determine the recommendations and suggestions of respondents for further enhancement of the healthcare services rendered. The statistical tools used in this study was Percentage, Mean, Analysis of Variance and T-test to determine the medical services availed of the Mogpoguenos, status and frequency of ailment and their level of satisfaction to the medical services they have availed. On the other hand, significant difference on the level of satisfaction to the health care services in terms of the profile of respondents was also determined in this study. Based from the findings of the study, most of the respondents who availed the services belong to the group of adult and most of them were commonly residing in the area for about 3-25 years. It was also found out that majority of the respondents are female and regular patients availing the services. In terms of the services frequently availed, it was found out that medical consultation was the most availed among all the services offered and most of them availed the healthcare services monthly. It was also found out that the respondents were moderately satisfied among the services in terms of medical facilities and majority of them recommended to increase the financial resources or fund for medical services. In view of the fact that most of the residents go to other municipality to have a laboratory examination, the researcher would like to recommend the improvement of laboratory and purchase of its apparatuses to be able to efficiently suffice the needs of the residents and since there were residents who came from barangays far from the Poblacion Area where the Municipal Health Office is located and there is a scheduled date of consultation in their respective barangay, it is recommended that there must be a facility for them to stay for the night.

Crossing Frontiers: The Management Experiences of the Marinduque State College Officer-in-Charge President

Leodegario M. Jalos Jr., Ed.D.
Vice President for Academic Affairs
Marinduque State College

Abstract

A. In any organization, change of leadership is a crucial matter, especially if the change is abrupt. To the successor of the leadership, especially to the Office-in-charge (OIC), managing a big organization is more than challenging. Aside from the fact that the day-to-day operation of the organization should be done with ease in a short span of time, the challenges of managing the “learned group” for acceptance is nerve-wracking. This paper underscores the experiences of the officer-in-charge of Marinduque State College in balancing the faculty, the community people and the politicians who are behind the operation of the College. It applies the document analysis and actual experiences of the concerned person gathered from his works and diary. Findings of the study, focuses on the balancing acts done by the OIC, accomplishments in relation to the fourfold functions of the College in a span of one year and two months (August 24, 2014 – September 27, 2015). The lessons learned in this paper can serve as basis for policy improvement regarding the role of the OIC in making the College working despite the short span of involvement in management.

The Expected vs. Observed Traits of Law Enforcement Administration Students

Dr. Leodegario M. Jalos Jr. & Mrs. Cora M. Dogui-is

School of Criminal Justice Education

This study was conducted to find out the knowledge, awareness and practices of students of the School of Criminal Justice Education towards the ideal traits of a good police officer. Conduct which detracts from respect and confidence is detrimental to the public interest and should be prohibited as early as possible. To become a law enforcer is tantamount to become an ideal leader. Therefore, qualities of such must also be given attention to. Be responsible and eager enough to seek those qualities by studying those given or cited examples. The researcher made use of the descriptive normative survey method with a questionnaire as the primary tool to gather the necessary data from the students. The data gathered were processed and analyzed using description and narrative measures to determine and interpret the perception of students. The student's always practiced their duties as dependent upon public approval of police actions. The study revealed that the students are knowledgeable to the professional ethics of a policeman. Also the students agree to the use of physical force to the extent necessary to secure observance of the law land and, that the students of law enforcement have the same traits with the police enforcer as expected by the community.
